DEATH OF ARCHBURGE BAYLEY -The telegraph at last announces the death of this distinguished Catholic prelate-the primate of the Church in this country. Insamuch as the event has been expected for days past no surprise will be felt over the news. In Monday's issue of the In TELLIGENCER we gave the principal inci-dents of the Archbishop's career, and there is nothing new to add in the way of biography.

The malady with which he died is said to have been a combination of kidney and liver diseases. He has been a sufferer liver diseases. He has been a sufferer also from ashma fer some years. A few months after he came to Baltimore in 1872 he took a sovere cold, from which he never entirely recovered, and was compelled to take short seasons of rest, but continued to fill his appointments and discharge his duties until about eighteen months ago, when he was compelled to desist from the severe labore of his charge. He made frequent visits from home, in the hope that he would recuperate, and spent several months in the cuperate, and spent saveral months in the South and at his old home at Newark, N J. Early last spring his malady assume such a serious form that he deter-mined to visit Europe, and in April he sailed from New York and went he sailed from New York and went to Vichy, in France, where he was attended by eminent physicians, but continued to grow worse. It was finally intimated to die in his own country he had better return home. He returned to America on the 20th of August, and repaired at once to Newark, where he has since remained. Upon the Archbishop's return there were rumors that he was in a dying condition, but these were denied, and some of his friends hoped that he would recover sufficiently to return to Baltimore in a month or two. The fact was, however, that the Archbishop had been constantly getting worse, and was rapidly approaching his end.

While he was abroad, as is well known, the Pope, at his request, appointed Bishop Gibbons, of Richmond, Va., his coadjutor to assist him in the discharge of his duties, Shortly after his return Bishop Gibbons administered the sacrament of Extreme Unction to the Archbishop, indicating that he had himself given up all hope of recovery. to Vichy, in France, where he was attend

The answer was as follows:
"A good test is the amount of interest his bank pays for deposits. No bank can afford to pay six per cent for money these times and take the risk of loaning it at such rates as are current for good paper—eix to seven per cent. Four per cent is as much as any bank can pay for deposits and loan the money safely and with sufficient margin to pay the expenses of handling it. A bank that deals largely in paper upon which it charges nine or ten per cent discount is not a safe place for working men and women to take their money to; and yet a bank that pays six per cent for deposits must charge that rate to cover risks and pay expenses. The safest plan for all is to take their money where no high rates are given or charged."

There is, no doubt, a good deal in the

There is, no doubt, a good deal in the oregoing remarks. The banks of this ountry, and especially the Savings banks, have been paying a rate of interest on deposits which have tempted them into illegitimate ventures in the hope of finding profitable employment for said deposits The consequence has been that they have ventured and lost money, and, in many cases, have tied up their means in depreciated real estate for which they could find no sale.

The most serious trouble, however, and it is the most discouraging feature of these numerous Savings bank failures has been the flagrant dishonesty or gross neglect of the officers. They have squan-dered the deposits of thousands of poor people in the way of loans to favorites of the bank (perhaps themselves) or shoddy security, and thus, when the day of examination and settlement came, they have turned out hopelessly rotten.

There is no security for the depositor of any kind of a bank save in the intelligent fidelity with which its affairs are managed, and inasmuch as intelligent deemed by the President an indorsement fidelity is a quality not abundant in the markets of the world, the next best guaranty to depositors is the exercise of severe surveillance on the part of the National and State governments over National and State banks. The National banks, as we all know, are subjected to periodical examinations by government experts, and it is rare that a National watched, and in addition to these person-al examinations are required between times to make sworn returns as to their condition on a given day prior to the date of the requirement. National banks therefore know not the day nor the

The Excessive Drouth.

It has now been three weeks since this part of the country had a rain, and the consequence is that the pastures and also the wheat fields are in a suffering condition. The Ohio river is lower than it has been for years, although not so low as it has occasionally been in times gone by. In Washington country, Pa., there is actual suffering in some localities for water for the stock. We are fold the water for the stock. We are told that the waters of Mingo, Pigeon and Ten Mile creeks are so low as to compel farmers along their banks to drive their stock to the springs and wells near their houses, and there water them by hand. As for the late sown wheat, the danger is that it will malt unless there is a speedy fall of rain. The acreage of wheat sown this fall is unusually large, and much of it was sown late, and hence there is much apprehension felt for its fate among the farmers. Last night the indications were that we were soon to have rain. The weather bulletin of yesterday morning called for 'rain areas" in the Ohio Valley. The Ohio Valley, however, comprises a large scope of country, and at this writing it is not absolutely certain that the region around Wheeling was in the eye of Old Prob when he took his observations, Trouble Among the Pittsburgh Coopers.

Evening Leader. The oil business, as is pretty generally known, always becomes brisker as fal approaches and the evenings become longer. The foreign demand has begun longer. The foreign demand has begun, and the various refineries for the past couple of weeks in this vicinity and in the oil regions have stirred up, making a sudden and large demand for barrels. The river being too low for the barrelmakers down the Ohio to come to the markets, of course the coopers here have had all they can do to fill the orders of Barrels, since the settlement of the Barrels, since the settlement of the coopers' strike, a few weeks ago, have been calling at the advanced price of $1 35, but on Saturday a prominent barrel merchant often buying an unusually large number went back to purchase 2,500 more barrels, but did not take them as $1 40 was demanded of him. On Sanday the coopersheld a meeting and reasoning that if the proprietor received $1 40, in equity they should receive twenty-two cents, they decided to notify them that unless this amount was paid them they would go out was paid them they would go out on a strike on this coming Thursday on a strike on this conning Thursda The coopers now receive 20 cents, while is considered a good price. The propertors held a meeting this morning in doffice of E. D. Moore, Esq., on Duquess way, and decided that $1.35 was all the way, and decided that $1.35 was all they could get for barrels and agreed to make that the price of them, and therefore pay only twenty cents to the coopers. This action will be communicated to the coopers this evening. It is not apprehended that there will be any strike as the coopers action of Sunday, was based on the supposition that manufacturers would receive $1.40 a barrel.

Coopers at 20 cents can average $2 a day wages with steady work, which is considered fair; and manufacturers can make 10 to 15 cents, which is also fair. The threatened strike is, therefore, happily averted, and all goes on as evenly banks therefore know not the day nor the hour in which they will be called to show their hand, and hence they are obliged to be perpetually on their good behavior.

This is a great security to the public. There should be the same security to the public in all kinds of banking. There should be rigid periodical examinations by State experts of the affairs of all State and private banks. Their transactions should be scrupulously and intelligently overhauled at short intervals, and a report of the same made to the Auditor of the Commonwealth. In this way only can the shaken confidence of the depositing public be built up and restored. As things have been going lately the great army of small depositors throughout the country will come to the conclusion that the only safe investment for their savings is in the purchase of real estate.

Report of the Committee on Pub-lie Buildings.

WASHINGTON, October 3.—The committee appointed by Secretary Schurz to investigate and report the condition of the building and walls of the Interior Department have submitted their report, in which they state that the walls are entirely safe. They recommend that the roof be rebuilt with Iron beams, the covering to be of copper, and as the space is evidently already much needed to accommodate the great and growing business of the Patent Office and Interior Department, which has in fact compelled dangerous uses of the space within the roof gerous uses of the spaces within the ro for the storage of combustible materia for the storage of combinatible materials, the committee suggests the propriety of constructing another building across the middle of the court yard, running north and south, to consist of the same number of stories as the present front and wings; to have a central corrider and two rows of rooms on each story, and to be of fire proof construction. The two court yards which will then exist will be of dimensions which can be readily roofed with iron and glass, which will make it possible to use all the lower portions of them for the storage of models, papers, &c.

Secretary Schutz visited the Indian delegation this morning and distributed silver medals among them. He says they appeared in very good spirits and showed Further Rank Forgeries.

New York, October 3.—The excitement caused by the exposure of the forgeries of Wm. C.
